The big stage for the Music Festival has been prepared and it is of a magnitude that surprises the beholder. It extends so far down in front that several rows of seats had to be taken out. Creator's band alone requires 1200 square feet of space and the chorus of several hundred voices, will bring together the greatest collection of musical talent ever seen in the city.

Interest in the approaching event, is now growing every day and great crowds are sure to be in attendance.

MUST ANSWER FOR THEIR RAID

More Than Thirty Warrants Issued For Alleged Night Riders.

MANY ARRESTS MADE.

Interest Now Focused On Eddyville and Lyon County.

Crittenden county officers got busy Monday and as a result of the investigation of night riding in that county, 33 warrants were issued at Marion. The first one to be taken was in Alonzo Grey. He was held under a bond of $2000, which he failed to give and was placed in jail. Soldiers were sent to Lyon and Caldwell counties and Tuesday was spent in rounding up the accused parties. At Princeton thirteen were arrested. Four of them, William Tandy, Richard Pool, John Turner and J. B. Malone, are defendants in the Holloman cases.

The others arrested were Roy Merrick, Ott Brown, Herbert Coleman, Robt. Oliver, Bob Oliver, Jr., Roger Tandy, James Tandy, Vilas Mitchell and Guy Satterfield. They asked to be allowed to make bond at Princeton, but this was denied and they were taken to Marion.

On the arrival of the train the defendants, accompanied by Ward Headley, of Princeton, their attorney, appeared before Judge Walter Blackburn. The trials were set for May 15, and the bond of each man was put at $1,000 in each case, some of them being accused of being in both the Cardin factory raid at View, and also the Bennett Bros. raid at Dysenburg, in which Henry Bennett and W. B. Groves were whipped.

Information has reached here that six more arrests have been made in Lyon county and that the prisoners will arrive on the 10:13 o'clock train from Kuttawa.

Great excitement prevails, but public sentiment favors the efforts being made by the officers to enforce the law.

Capt. J. L. Givens and thirteen soldiers of the Middlesboro Company went west again Tuesday, taking with them 27 horses for cavalry service in the river counties in the night rider campaign. They will operate in Calloway, Lyon, Trigg and Caldwell counties. Gen. Williams was at Princeton Tuesday.

Night riders Sunday night destroyed the tobacco plant beds of F. O. Fishel, a prominent farmer of Friedberg, in Davidson county, N. C. This is the first time that night riders have operated in that section.

Alonzo Grey, a rural mail carrier, was arrested Monday and warrants

Theme of Newton Beers' Dramatic Recital For Odd Fellows.

Under the auspices of Green River Lodge No. 54, Newton Beers gave a dramatic entertainment at the Tabernacle Monday night in celebration of the 89th anniversary of the organization of the order of Odd Fellows in America. A very large audience was present. Mr. Beers was introduced by Mr. John Stites, who eulogized the order and its noble principles.

Mr. Beers presented the play of David and Jonathan, depicting the remarkable adventures told in the Bible in the lives of Saul, David and Jonathan. He is an actor of the old school, an impressive reader, an impersonator of rare skill and a fluent and interesting speaker.

HEAVY RAINSTORM
Put Streams Out of Banks Tuesday Morning.

There was a terrific and prolonged wind, thunder and rain storm at two o'clock Tuesday morning, which lasted for more than an hour. The rain filled all streams to the banks and Dry Branch was so swollen that it almost stopped travel on Seventh street. The rainfall was 1.7 inches. Tenth street was again flooded, showing the urgent need of the sewer to be built. In the country the constant rains are damaging wheat crops and greatly retarding the planting of corn. Much plowing is yet to be done.

Personally Conducted.

By ARTHUR BOLTONWOOD.

Copyrighted, 1907, by J. G. Reed.

"It has always been waiting for you," she said. "I was still nervous putting her gloves. The personage requested focus of attention, with his umbrella swinging like a shepherd's crook were flung out of the room beyond, bound for the hotel."

"Are you going back to Iowa to teach school?" asked Lancaster.

"Yes," she said quietly.

There was a rather painful silence for a time.

"I'm teaching school in Iowa something very, very desirable?" he pursued.

"Not always," she confessed.

"I was thinking," said he, "that art we get along like very much comes to Iowa if you'd let me, then I'd like to bring you back here for a little personal conduct our own—just yours and mine. I haven't showed you a tenth part of what I'd like to show you then when just and I are to have the party."

He leaned closer her.

"I'm thinking that personal conducted our own—go on forever," he added.

He spoke quietly, but with such earnestness that the hot blood crept even to her temples. He noticed that her hands were trembling and that her breath had quickened.

"It would be end better than this," he said. "What do you think of it?"

Very deliberately her eyes were lifted to meet his. He read in their depths an answer that set his pulse bounding.

"It is a woman young or old, is well protected from the blues, nervous backache, and the many symptoms of womanhood bring such unfold suffering that age is to her."

"Then you've been here before?" she asked.

Lancaster nodded his assent.

"I've been watching you since you joined us as Cologne," she said. "Most of the time you've been very much bored, but I concluded you had seen it all before."

Lancaster said nothing. He was wondering if some sudden intuition had given her an inkling of the truth.

"If you had taught school in Iowa as many terms as I have," said she, "if you had slaved and saved and looked for a man to marry, it would be well by this time."

For the physical and mental condition of the average person is better than formerly, but principally because people have decided not to grow old. That settles it. We are largely taken at our own valuation and not now disposed to make it a bad one. In this city are to be found many men who retain their business a generation longer. It was once the custom in this country, as it is now in England, that when a man had secured a competence he retired from active work and lived serenely. Nowadays it is seldom done. A competence does not mean an income of a few thousand dollars a month amount. There are to be found multimillionaires above eighty who are just as anxious to make money as ever, and they seem to be quite as competent—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Unconscious Butt Ins.

"Have you ever noticed," said the melancholy man, "how it is the reaction of certain people to get in the way—to be around when they are not wanted? I suppose that if they were aware of their calling they would feel badly about it, but, as it is, I suppose they never are conscious of it, and that probably explains why they keep at it."

"Take my brother-in-law, for instance. He has a marvelous faculty for turning up at inopportune moments. If we are going to have company to dinner, we can surely count on a message from him asking whether he could not drop in with his wife and himself to drop in on us. If I am anticipating a quiet hour of reading in the evening, it is ten to one that I'll hear his voice in the hall. Just as I am hastening to close up my office in the afternoon, he is apt to come in and establish himself for a prolonged stay. He is a bore, and he makes me take him into account."

She looked at him with an intentness that was rather disconcerting.

"Tell me," she said, "why should you, knowing all these things as you do, care to travel with us?"

Lancaster regarded her for a time in thoughtful silence. Dare he tell her the truth? He looked into her clear gray eyes and decided to risk it.

"Will you tell me the real reason?" he asked.

"Why, yes, of course," she replied, with a little note of surprise in her voice.

"Well, then," said Lancaster sturdily, "it was because of you."

The color deepened in her cheeks. "Oh, she said, with a faint compunction. How she felt. She was abashedly pulling her gloves to cover her embarrassment.

"You remember that evening at the hotel in Cologne," Lancaster went on, "when you and I were partners at what? I joined your party the next morning, and I wanted to be with you just to be near you."

"I rather wish you hadn't told me," she said uneasily.

"Would you rather I had fibbed politely?" he asked.

"No-o," she replied slowly.

"You see," Lancaster continued, "I'd been to the continent all by myself, and, to tell the truth, I'd not been having a very glorious time of it. And that night at Cologne?" He prompted.

"That, yes, that night at Cologne?" she prompted.

"It seemed," he said very gravely,

"as if you fitted into a niche in my life that had been made for you and that had always been waiting for you."

She was still nervously putting her gloves. The personage requested focus of attention, with his umbrella swinging like a shepherd's crook were flung out of the room beyond, bound for the hotel.

Wisconsin's Fighting Senator

La Follette, a Presidential Candidate, Who Has Stirred Up the Public Conscience and Means Business—Resolute Fee of Trusts and Political Grafting. Brainy Orator and No Trifler.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

If the American people are looking for a man who will not only carry on the Roosevelt policies, but will go the wielder of the big stick one better, they can find the man in Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. La Follette has been fighting the railroads, the political bosses and the corporation tax dodgers for more than fifteen years. He is an ardent advocate of all the president's measures and some others. He kept fighting until he whipped the Senate, the governors and the corporations in Wisconsin, and his friends think he has the ability and the staying power to repeat the performance in the nation.

La Follette is of presidential size even though he is only five feet four. Any man who can fit himself to a great principle and make it a part of his life has in him the stuff of which leaders are made. No man is fit to lead others until he himself can follow truth. The idea for which the Wisconsin man has stood is that of taking the government out of the hands of the selfish interests that have seized it and of placing it and the welfare of the people, where it belongs. He has dared to stand for that idea unswervingly, to advocate it by voice and by act, and when the American people get ready to recapture their rights they will not forget men like La Follette.

If the voters of this country will that produced a Collyer in the old world and that gave so many sturdy pioneers to the new. Young La Follette spent his boyhood on a farm, but entered college in 1874. As his father was dead and his mother in comparative poverty, he had to work his way through college, taking a four years' course and keep his mother and family besides. Despite all the time he devoted to the paper, he kept up in his studies and won the championship in an interstate oratorical contest.

Did Much in Four Years.
The same determination which enabled him to make such rapid ascent until he finally defeated the railroads and the machine in Wisconsin rendered it possible for the boy to make his way, keep his mother, edit a paper, carry on his studies and win a college, state and interstate oratorical contests, and become a speaker of four years. This world presented a formidable front to all comers. Robert M. La Follette armored himself with will and overcame it in many battles. No sooner was La Follette admitted to the bar than he was elected district attorney of Dane county, a position which he held four years, after which he went to congress, where he served as a member of the House of Representatives. He was nominated for the Senate in 1894, but was beaten. He then became a member of the Wisconsin legislature, and was elected to the state senate in 1896. In 1898 he was nominated for the Senate again, but was beaten. He then became a member of the Wisconsin legislature, and was elected to the state senate in 1896. In 1898 he was nominated for the Senate again, but was beaten.

In 1899 he was nominated and elected governor of Wisconsin. The victory was only personal, however. The lobby again succeeded in defeating his program, but he did not give up. He renewed the fight, ran again for governor, was elected and won the enactment of part of his platform. Still he was not satisfied, but ran a third time for the governorship.

This time he was noticed, he reacted, and then he again got to the last ditch for all his principles, the three most important of which were a state primary law, equal taxation and a railroad rate bill. His enemies raised against him the "third term" cry and massed a formidable opposition, led by the railroads, the Standard Oil Company, of the congressmen and all the railroads and other corporations in the state. When the little fighter won over all of them the opposition bolted, held another state convention, elected a contesting delegation to the national convention and nominated a state ticket.

Crowning Triumph of His Career.
The succeeding fight was the hottest in the history of Wisconsin politics. The two senators, of whom the record holder was La Follette, were strong enough to have the La Follette delegation thrown out of the national convention. He went back to Wisconsin, began a vigorous campaign, won his case in the courts for the legality of his ticket and was elected over his competitor by an overwhelming plurality. It was the crowning triumph of his career. He was then chosen to the senate, but refused to resign the governorship until all of his measures had been enacted into law. The fight had been going on for more than ten years, but he had won at every point. The result of the bill that completed his legislative programme he laid down the reins as governor of Wisconsin and began his career as United States senator.

As might have been expected, La Follette was not welcome to the reigning "inner circle" of the Senate. The senators from the express companies, the railroads, the trusts and the special interests had little use for one from the plain people.

Decided to Be a Wallflower.
The new man made his presence felt, however, from the first. He declined to be a wallflower. He had no respect for the precedent that made a new senator have two years before he could begin representing his constituents. He had not been in his seat long before he prevented the steal of millions of dollars' worth of government coal lands by the railroads in Indian Territory. He began almost at once fighting for an employer's liability act, eight hours for railroads employees, and the regulation of railroads to get rid of the watered stock fraud. He also lent vigorous support to the rate bill, his speech being pronounced by students the ablest of the session. He attacked the railway mail graft. Despite the attempts of the railroads to attack him in the press to have him buried, he went his way and did his work. He showed himself infinitely larger than all the tribe of those who pretend to serve the people while hiring themselves to the people's enemies.

It is a matter for supreme thanksgiving that at last the railroads are learning their true friends. They are seeing through the masks of those who pretend to serve public good, but in reality serve only private greed. They have seen enough insurance crookedness, railroad favoritism, bribery, double dealing and naked graft to know them as their natural foes forevermore against the industrial pirates and the political grafters. It is men such as La Follette who have done their part toward awakening the public conscience.

Robert M. La Follette is one of the greatest orators now before the public. While he has grace of delivery and uses the choicest language, he is little given to classic allusion, byplay or ornamentation. He has a keen sense of humor, but uses it sparingly or not at all on the platform. He is all business there, talk directly and simply to the audience and makes appeal to their intelligence and love of right and fair play. His power lies in the fact that he knows what he is talking about and is not trifling. It would be useless for orators only knew it, these are the qualities that win men everywhere.

In the political campaign like that of La Follette it is not a question of his being big enough for the presidency, but rather one of the ability of the American people to come to his standard. It is not be that is on trial, but the public. Are they big enough to cut loose from all the delusions and take a real man who elect to the presidency a servant of the selfish interests rather than one of their own tried and true friends, they need expect nothing better than a continuation of corruption rule and robbery.

Worked For the People.

If they desire, however, the services of one who will work for them rather than for their enemies, why not take one who has worked for them and against their enemies? That is La Follette.

The representatives of prosperity in the United States Senate tried to haze La Follette. That should be a very high recommendation for him in the eyes of the honest people of the land. The surest sign of a man's political virtue is to be a hero and cry "I am a good man" when the "prosperity" name of "pred" is used.

That name of "pred" which I have had to be original, is submitted as a proper designation for those who desert their country to serve the trusts. It is a shorter and not so ugly a word as traitor or renegade, appellations which are apt to come into new usage when more serious subterfuge of sorts is adopted. "Pred" could be made to apply both to the trust and the trust agent, to the briber, the bribe and the "yellow dog" go-between. The big criminal who manages to keep out of jail, the grafter who poses as respectable, the lobbyist who pretends to be an attorney, the man who has been serving his own pocket could all be known as "preds". The name, like charity, would thus cover many sins.

Senator La Follette's life has been devoted to a battle with the "preds". They have learned to hate him because he whipps them. When the trust organisms, the railroads and the other attitudes toward a reform you may be sure it is because they can either buy him or beat him. They can do neither with La Follette, hence the vituperation.

Robert Marion La Follette was born near Madison, Wis., in 1855. He comes from the French Huguenots, the sect

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.—FOR CONGRESS—
HON. A. O. STANLEY,
HENDERSON COUNTY.

The American Tobacco Co. is offering all of its property for sale in Lexington and Maysville, at cost. F. R. Toeater, the Lexington manager, states that his company will probably make St. Louis one of the centers and devote attention to the development of tobacco culture in Missouri, where successful experiments have been made. He says the purpose of the company is to withdraw from Kentucky altogether as a purchaser of leaf tobacco.

Following close upon the killing of Jim Hargis by his son, comes the news that former sheriff Ed Callahan, Hargis' man Friday, has been slain by his brother-in-law. A coincidence is that Callahan met his fate just five years to the day from the date of Jas. B. Marcus' murder by the Hargis-Callahan gang. It may also be noted that three men were killed and another wounded in Breathitt county Monday, in spite of the recent resolutions adopted by a mass meeting in Jackson, claiming that while Breathitt county was a model of peacefulness, Western Kentucky was overrun by bands of outlaws.

HIT WITH A ROCK.

Mr. W. E. Adcock, of Church Hill, was struck on the left shin with a rock, while in the city—Monday and painfully but not seriously injured. Mr. Adcock was in his buggy driving near the corner of Eighth and Virginia streets and came upon two negroes who were in a scrap. One of the negroes threw a rock at the other and the latter ducked. The stone passed over his head and hit Mr. Adcock squarely on his limb. The skin was broken and the blood bled freely. The leg was also considerably bruised by the blow. He failed to recognize either of the combatants.

GENTRY BROS. COMING.

The Gentry Brothers' Famous Shows United, will be here for two performances on Saturday, May 16.

STANLEY'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

Mr. Stanley, having been notified of his nomination by the Democrats for the Sixty-first Congress, feelingly expressed his appreciation of the honor in the following brief and timely speech:

"It affords me the most profound gratification to accept this nomination tendered under circumstances that fill me with a sense both of gratitude and of my unworthiness. To have been the first man in this great district—so often represented by such illustrious Democrats—to receive a fourth nomination is an honor which any man might covet, and which I shall humbly endeavor to deserve."

"I do not regard this nomination so much as an evidence of any personal preference for me, or of any unusual worth on my part, as an appreciation on the part of the people that continual service renders the incumbent more capable of faithfully discharging the onerous duties imposed upon him. The States of the East and South have long since established the custom of returning their Representatives to Congress. The failure of the Second Kentucky District, and of other districts in Kentucky to observe this custom has deprived them of the service of many distinguished representatives."

"I feel that however unworthy I may be at the present time, and it is with a profound sense of my limitations that I acknowledge my unworthiness, I am infinitely better suited to serve the Democracy and the people of this district than when first elected to this office, and I pledge to them now as an earnest of my appreciation of and of an honor so often conferred, and that without opposition, my earnest, devout and tireless efforts in their behalf."

PE-RU-NA AS A TONIC AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mrs. Paul Casavant Writes From 810 Monroe Street, Topeka, Kansas, Concerning Peruna. Read Her Letter Below:

Mrs. Paul Casavant, 810 Monroe street, Topeka, Kansas, writes:

"I have found Peruna very effective in restoring my health and strength after I had been worn out and run down for a long time. I began to use it about six months ago when I was unable to leave my bed. My nervous system was shattered and I could not sleep at night. After taking this condition was completely altered after a few bottles of Peruna had been used and I kept on using it until I was finally restored to perfect health and had gained about fifteen pounds."

"I feel so grateful for what your medicine has done for me that I am pleased to give it my hearty endorsement and shall always be glad to speak a good word for it."

Tones up the System.

Mr. William McRoberts, Waverly, Minn., writes:

"I am perfectly well of the catarrh. I took Peruna and Manalin. I recommend your medicines to everyone and cannot praise it enough. It is a fine medicine to take any season of the year. Even in the spring it tones up the system and acts as a gentle stimulant."

A Good Tonic.

Mr. Joe Leonard, Flat 5, 222 Allen St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"I have good reason to endorse Peruna as I have found it a good tonic, stimulating the system and sustaining it under all kinds of exertion. It gives unusual endurance and enabling me to work much longer and harder than the system could possibly do. It is not for the great powers with which it endows me. It gives one nerves of iron."

NIGHT RIDER NEWS.

for thirty-two other men charged with night riding were issued at Marion, Crittenden county. The militia has been called out and intense excitement prevails. Grey's home is at Knobwood, Lyon county.

Twenty-five masked men visited the home of John Sanders at Wellsville, Bracken county. Sunday night and compelled him to dig up his tobacco beds on the pain of death. When the beds were destroyed the riders whipped Sanders until the blood flowed from his wounds. They also visited the home of Nelson Cummings and shot out his windows when he refused to come out. F. M. Crawford and Leopold Bay, in the same vicinity, were called out and threatened with bodily harm if they attempted to raise tobacco this year.

In Spring and Early Summer a Tonic is Needed.

The source of good blood is fresh air and well-digested food. If anything interferes with digestion the blood becomes impure.

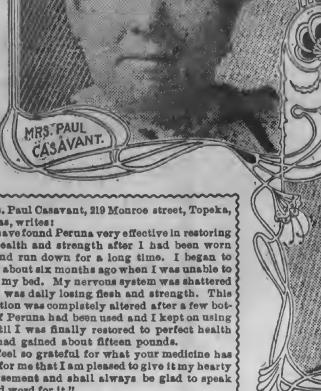

A catarrhal condition of the stomach prevents perfect digestion. Such a condition allows the food to ferment and decompose in various ways, instead of digesting. The blood is thus contaminated with various materials that do not belong in the blood.

This gives rise to spring fever, eruptions on the skin, general lassitude and constipation.

Peruna corrects all these difficulties by striking at the source of them. By eradicating the catarrhal condition of the stomach Peruna at once restores digestion, the blood is thereby purified, and the machinery of the body is put in working order.

Peruna has probably made a more remarkable record in cases of catarrh of the stomach than any other medicine. These cases are very frequent, and we have a host of testimonials in which Peruna has received lavish praise for prompt and permanent relief in cases of catarrh of the stomach.

Mrs. Emily Kellogg, 5649 S. Lawrence St., South Tacoma, Wash., gives her experience with Peruna. Read her letter below:

Mrs. Emily Kellogg, 5649 S. Lawrence St., S. Tacoma, Wash., member of Ladies of the Macosha, writes:

"Three months ago I had an attack of biliousness which threatened to undermine my health and strength. Luckily for me, I tried Peruna at the suggestion of my friends before it was too late. I found it did away with my biliousness and my usual sick headache, neither did food nauseate me any longer. In two weeks' time Peruna had completely rid my system of the poison and bile, and I was in a much better condition. My skin assumed its normal color, I had a splendid appetite and I was in every way improved in health. I used Peruna for a month and a half and it wrought a wonderful change in my entire system."

with my eyes being red and watery, and my general health was very poor.

"Finally a friend advised me to try Peruna. I had tried almost everything else. I took a bottle of Peruna and commenced to take it at once, and before I had finished the first bottle I found I was improving.

"I wrote you for special advice concerning my eyes, which I received. I continued to take the Peruna until I had used six bottles.

"My eyes are absolutely well, and I feel like a new man in every way.

"I honestly advise anyone similarly afflicted to try Peruna."

Peruna Tablets.

"Some persons prefer to take tablets rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna-tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna,

Pain in Chest.

Mr. Frank H. Flitter, 218 Crescent Avenue, Montgomery, Ala., formerly principal of Haynesville High School, writes:

"I can truthfully say that Peruna is a splendid remedy for a gripe, and a good tonic for building up the system."

Mr. Caleb H. Bortell, Police Officer, 213 North Pace street, Baltimore, Md., writes:

"For several years I was troubled with catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. Many times I would vomit before and after eating.

"I took seven bottles of your Peruna, and I am glad to say that it has cured me.

"I feel more like living and working, and am not bothered at all with my old troubles."

I have great pleasure in recommending Peruna to all sufferers with catarrh, and I thank you for what you have done for me, for none but those who have suffered as I have can appreciate a great cure as I have found Peruna to be."

Mr. William Hoge, President Commercial Travelers Association, 260 Broadway, New York, N. Y., writes:

"I endorse Peruna as the most effectual remedy for catarrh I have been able to find in my travels in this country or Europe. I can truly say that I have spent thousands of dollars in this country alone trying to find a cure, and it was not until I was induced to give Peruna a trial that I obtained anything like permanent relief. As a tonic it is simply great. It ought to be in every home. I have never had the slightest symptom of catarrh for long years."

In a later letter Mr. Hoge says:—"I have need of Peruna for many years, never without a bottle in my grip. I am the youngest feeling and youngest looking man of my age in New York, which I think is entirely due to Peruna."

taking Peruna, which I did. I took three bottles, and can say I am cured.

"Thanks for kind advice and Peruna."

Miss Mayne E. Smith, 444 East Broad St., Columbus, Ohio, writes:

"Have used Peruna for catarrh and hay fever. The results being remarkable, I can highly recommend it to all who are suffering with the above diseases. I am happy to be able to say it has helped me wonderfully."

Eyes Red and Watery.

FINE STORY OF SIC. CREATURE

Carries Two Alarm Clocks So That He Will Be Surely Aroused.

The recent tour of Creatore and his band in England was marked by numerous amusing incidents. One of these occurred in the city of Hanley in the North country, where the band played a concert. The train carrying the organization arrived late in the day, and the hour of departure next morning being rather early, Signor Creatore selected the hotel nearest the depot as being the most convenient in which to stop.

It is his custom to carry two alarm clocks when traveling, one of which he sets so as to ring fifteen minutes after the first arouses him. He follows this plan as to prevent himself relapsing into slumber after the first and to relieve him, besides of the worry attached to depending on the bell boy.

On this occasion he arose when the first alarm rang, and in a few minutes went down to the office to pay his bill. No one was on duty and the stillness of deep slumber pervaded the hotel.

He rapped on the counter and at several doors, but there was no response. Then he discovered that the doors of the hotel were locked. Looking at his watch nervously he saw that it was close to train time. Something must be done, the perplexed bandleader said to himself in a crescendo of determination. At that moment he discovered the large hotel gong hanging near.

Sizing it as a heaven sent instrument he beat a solo that would have shamed the combined sounds of the entire tympani of his band in the most strenuous passage.

The effect was electrical in its results, as are the finest climaxes to his audiences. Where a second before there was quiet and lack of life that nerved him to desperation, the hotel was now filled with a babel of women's screams, the hoarse shouts of men, the clashing of doors and the sound of rushing of feet. Down the stairs trooped the guests wild-eyed and disheveled, some partly dressed and most of them in the scanty attire.

Creatore's efforts on the gong had been taken for a fire alarm. In the confusion the doors were unlocked and the excited Maestro caught the train.

After this experience Creatore took the precaution to inquire as to the hours of opening and closing the houses in which he stopped and in addition settled his bill the night before leaving, for in the excitement and suddenness of his arousal of the employees and guests at the hotel in Hanley he forgot to pay his host for his entertainment and had the bother of remitting from the city he played in the following day.

CRUISER BLOWN UP

Explosion on Japanese Training Ship Cost 240 Lives.

Tokio, May 3.—An explosion occurred in the stock magazine of the cruiser Matsushima while anchoring at Makang, a harbor on the Pescadores Islands. The Matsushima immediately sunk until only the bridge was visible. The sons of Baron Chirider, vice minister of the foreign office, and of Prince Oyama, field marshal, are among the cadets who, it is feared, are lost; also Captains Name, Yoshimori and Yashiro.

The cause of the explosion is unknown.

The regular complement of the sunken vessel was 355 men, and on her cruise she had about fifty cadets aboard, making a total of 415. About 175 were saved, which would make the loss of officers and men about 240.

Itching, bleeding, protruding or blind piles yield to Doan's Ointment. Chronic cases soon relieved, finally cured. Druggists all sell it.

TO MARRY IN FLORENCE

Mme. Gould has deposited $100,000 in the Bank of Naples. She brought here all her jewels, three automobiles and a mountain of luggage.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life When a Cure May Be Had

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy, Bright's disease sets in.

Leslie K. Hickman, living on Arch street, Madisonville, Ky., says: "I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I tested their merits against three months ago and the results could have been more satisfactory. I had pain through the small of my back directly over the kidneys which caused me considerable annoyance. Stooping or stretching caused sharp twinges to catch me in the kidneys. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box. I noticed a decided improvement from the use of this box, and continued taking them, using a second box, completely curing me. I have every confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills and cheerfully give them my recommendation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N.Y., sole agents for the United States.

On Both Sides

By W. F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

"Looks pretty, doesn't it?" demanded Ted Barrion as Nella Fenway came out on the broad plaza.

The girl glanced over the well kept lawn, past the road and across the fields to the cool dark of the woods beyond.

"Pretty!" she repeated scornfully. "It's just the loveliest thing I ever saw. It looks almost like the moon."

"Almost," echoed Barrion. "I say, that's a bit rough on a fellow. Silently guaranteed that it would be real thing."

"That's just the trouble," she explained. "You just go to the man and

"Your sister makes a charming hostess," said Nella, with an approving smile. "It must be a great relief to have someone to take from your shoulders the burden of housekeeping."

"You bet," declared Ted, with more fervor than elegance. "This dance will cover a multitude of social debts. But come; let's get out of this and into the real country. It lies just across the road. We can sit over there with the red roses and imagine that we are actually looking on and listening to the music."

Nella fell in with the suggestion, and langhingly they strolled across the road to where a little knot of the real farmers had gathered to watch the fun. Ted found a seat for her on a smooth stone and took his place by her side.

"It's funny," he said bluntly, "on the other side of the fence want to come over here, while those over here wish that they could be over there. It's human nature, I suppose, to want what we know nothing of."

"I have been on both sides," she remarked. "And like this side best. So it is all right for those who know nothing else but I am awfully tired of it. Ted, it is all so artificial and so unhuman."

"Inhuman, too, for that matter," chuckled Ted. "I say, Nella, how would you like to chuck it all?"

"I'm afraid," she said bluntly, "you never heard of such a place by the name of society trimmings, all that sort of trimmings, and we'll make it real. Then we can live on both sides of the fence, content on either side with the knowledge that we have the key to the gate."

Nella's hand stole into his. "It would be very nice on both sides of the fence—with you," she said softly.

"Postponed.

Beaming with joy, little Mr. Meek sat upon the edge of his high-backed chair. His spectacles were dim with happiness, and he listened in rapt attention to the remarks of his prospective mother-in-law.

"I'm afraid you're frantic, Mr. Meek," said the lad, "that my consent to your marrying my daughter has been wrung from me only under protest. I knew that if I did not agree she would disgrace the family by an elopement. When she wants anything we always have given her our word of honor, consequences and long experience taught me that I might as well take off an onion as reason with her when she loses her temper—especially if there is a fatiron handy or a rolling pin. Has the marriage day been fixed yet?"

But Mr. Meek's spectacles were no longer misty.

"I have, madam," he remarked nervously, "to see a man about a dog. If you will excuse me I'll chat it over with you—er—tomorrow."

And as he flew out of the hall door the little man congratulated himself upon the fact that tomorrow never comes.

"London Answers.

"How about the way you have turned the lily?" he said, with a little laugh.

"When Rita Farnum gets to heaven and she finds her angel robe is not to her liking she will search the other robes to find a smaller size. All dressmakers will go to the other place," he added.

"That's the feminine beauty," asserted Ned, with a rippling laugh that reminded Ted of the song of birds in the early morning.

"It is useless to paint the lily—until the lily is faded," he said, with a little laugh.

"But it's not a real farm dance any more than this is a real farm, Ted. It's a play and a pretense. We have to paint the lily to make it look real. Rita Farnum is upstairs getting into a delicate mulle gown trimmed with real lace. That's her idea of the way a farmer's daughter dresses."

Ted glanced approvingly at the plump little girl frank and saucy as the young French lassie.

"It is useless to paint the lily—until the lily is faded," he said, with a little laugh.

"What's the matter with the farm?" demanded Barrion. "It's one of the show places of the country. You are the only one who has said anything against it."

"I am disappointed," explained the girl. "You, but not I, like the old farm."

"Before they found coal on their farm and he got into society," completed Ted, who knew the story of Joel Fenway's sudden rise to riches and his subsequent avoidance of any reference to his country.

"We have had the country ever since, but I love it. This has been my first visit to a farm since the old days. I was like a little girl promised a new toy when I heard I was to be one of the house party for the barn dance, but it's not the same," she added wistfully. "The girls are having overalls and a cotton shirt, but you've got your society manner on, Ted."

The arrival of a hay wagon loaded with guests from a nearby "farm" closed the argument. Others of the house party hurried out on the plaza and Nella was free to wander to the side porch.

From a society point of view the arrangements were perfect. At the foot of the side lawn was a suitable field in which lay the great yellow pumpkins cut into jack-o'-lanterns and lighted by electricity, as were those that lined the front lawn. At the rear was the huge barn lighted by arc lights hung in great Japanese lanterns. which made curious patches of color on the polished floor of the specially laid dancing floor. On the lawn were scores of small tables served by negro waiters looking oddly unhappy in their overalls, which for the night replaced their service clothes.

"Yes, it's a terrible picture, but Nella smiled a little sadly to herself as she recalled the anticipations which the invitation had aroused. She still loved their old farm, but her stepmother would never permit her to go to the country. It was something she was used to forget.

Ted's eyes on the "farm" had been a great disappointment to her. He was all so unreal, so insincere, and most of all she was disappointed in the dance itself. She made herself comfortable in one corner of the dark porch, where the music came but faintly to her ears and where she was not liable to interruption.

For an hour she sat huddled in a rustic chair that had cost as much as a whole parlor suit in real farmhouses, and it was not until she heard Ted's voice that she recalled herself to the present.

"I've been looking for you everywhere," he announced as he came toward the ball. "The ball is making a great hit. Every one says it is the best of the season, and it will be a reward Bess says that I may have of absence for half an hour."

"Your sister makes a charming hostess," said Nella, with an approving smile. "It must be a great relief to have someone to take from your shoulders the burden of housekeeping."

"You bet," declared Ted, with more fervor than elegance. "This dance will cover a multitude of social debts. But come; let's get out of this and into the real country. It lies just across the road. We can sit over there with the red roses and imagine that we are actually looking on and listening to the music."

Nella fell in with the suggestion, and langhingly they strolled across the road to where a little knot of the real farmers had gathered to watch the fun. Ted found a seat for her on a smooth stone and took his place by her side.

"How about the way you have turned the lily?" he said, with a little laugh.

"A man came toward him carrying a skin of wine on his shoulders.

"Master," he said to Karma, "is the bridge safe?" And he pointed to the two stones which had been placed on the bridge to support it.

"I am not accustomed to pass judgment hurriedly," replied the pundit. "Before I can either condemn or praise the bridge I must know that it has been fully tested twice."

"You are too fussy," said the man and straightway started across. But the boy begged him to wait, and he fell into the current.

"The bridge is not safe," Karma called to him.

The man angrily waded ashore.

"But I thought you required two tests?" he said to the wise one.

"That is true," Karma replied. "A little while before your arrival I tried to cross and fell in the river myself."

And the man was angry, and when he reached a safe distance he suddenly threw a stone at Karma, but happily missed him.

Bombarded.

"Ah, my friend," said the old soul, "you don't know what it is to be in the midst of a shower of stone."

"Yes, I do," responded the younger man.

"Recur in the water?"

"No, but I have often sat in the parquet while the gallery gods were munching peanuts," Detroit Tribune.

CORTRIGHT METAL SHINGLES

NEVER LEAK

What never leak? Exactly; never leak, never needs repairs of any kind, and last as long as the building itself. Neither melting snow, nor the worst driving rain can possibly reach the interior of the building that's covered with Cortright Metal Shingles. Pretty good recommendation isn't it? In addition we might add they're fire-proof and lightning proof too! Think of it and they are not as expensive as other forms of roofing. Step in and we'll show them to you.

DOUBLE BILL

To Be Presented By the High School Pupils.

TABERNACLE FRIDAY

Proceeds to Be Given to Fund For Decorating Chapel.

The entertainment to be given by the High School Friday night is for the purpose of getting funds to decorate the new chapel. The chapel has been in use but one year. That year has been sufficient to show its great advantages. Still its advantages can be increased a great deal. The chapel walls are bare of all decoration. If it were hung with copies of the old masters, it would be a delightful place. The funds from this entertainment are for this purpose.

The junior girls' play "A Box of Monkeys," is a repetition of the play given a week ago. Those who take part are Mary Crenshaw, Mary Tandy, Norah Higgins, Carrie Bidle and Ella Smithson. The play was a great success. The reproduction will be better still.

If Hamlet had married Juliet, and Romeo had married Ophelia, all would have lived happily ever afterwards." Is the theme of the boys' play. They have been working long and hard, and under the efficient coaching of Mrs. Blakemore, they have learned their parts perfectly. It has been very kind in Mrs. Blakemore to give her time in this work. It shows a wholesome interest in the schools. If more patrons would take the same interest and so evidently manifest it, the schools would be better and the teachers more enthusiastic.

John Petrie will portray "The Beautiful Juliet;" "Ophelia" will be resplendent in Chas. Meacham, Tom Smith as "Queen of Denmark" is gorgeous; Jim Breathitt has no peer in rendering "Hamlet;" "the elegant Lady Montague" is the part of Caldwell Feland, and Summers Cooper makes Romeo live again.

A large crowd is expected. Any High School pupil can procure your tickets. They are also on sale at the Anderson-Fowler Drug Co., incorporated. Admission 15c and 25c.
